Biophillic Design (noun):

Derived from the word Biophilia which literally means a love of life. It stems from the Greek words for Life (Bios) and Love (Philia). It has become an important concept for blending the principles of Biophilia with Architectural Best Practice.

"Bringing the outside, inside."

The right planting can transform your premises - and your business

Private client, Aberdeen

The presence of live plants restores the inborn relationship that we have with nature and provides positive effects upon health morale and innovation.

This is not just psychological; plants absorb carbon dioxide and toxins while releasing oxygen to provide better air quality, creating a healthier environment.

The difference that plants make

Plants can have a significant impact upon the productivity of your workforce, as well as on customer and visitor reactions. Plants are also a highly effective enhancement for your working environment and can have a number of benefits such as:

Visual Effect

- Make a great first impression on your visitors with your reception area
- Creates aethetically attractive working areas for staff
- Adds life to common areas to keep tenants happy
- Helps to sell empty office space to tenants

Health and wellbeing

- Healthy staff are more productive and creative
- Reduce sick leave and avoid health claim risks
- Wellbeing initiatives are important for retention of key staff
- Helps to create a good workplace culture

Environmental

- Enviroculture is peat-free and soil-free
- Underline your organisation's green credentials in a visual way
- BREEAM rating and other environmental considerations
- We offer sustainable container options

Plants can reduce CO2 in offices by up to 25%

Rooted in Knowledge

We are committed to regularly examining and actively participating in our own research which explores the benefits of integrating plants and biophilia into office spaces.

This allows us to meet the evolving needs of our clients and provide cutting-edge solutions that not only enhance the aesthetic appeal of their spaces but also contribute to the well-documented positive impact of greenery on employee well-being, productivity, and overall workplace satisfaction.

Interior plants dont have to use materials that have an impact on the environment.

Enviroculture is our own-brand peat-free and soil-free planting solution for many varieties of indoor plants, and is a viable alternative to traditional soil or compost.

We have been using it for many years, promoting the benefits of protecting our natural peatlands which are unique ecosystems providing massive amounts of natural carbon storage.

Green ceilings

Ceilings represent a huge blank canvas where interior designers can really transform the atmosphere of a room. Green ceilings can give an unexpected splash of nature breaking the monotony of regular plain white ceilings. With the Benholm design and installation team the sky is literally the limit for your green ceiling.

Suspended raft planting can also breathe life into ceiling spaces. Designed to be suspended from ceilings with foliage hanging down from the raft, this type of planting brings nature closer to the users of the room below for a more immersive experience.

What is Nordik Moss?

It's a sustainable material, harvested by hand from the forest floor, and is 100% biodegradable. We then preserve it using natural minerals, to stop it growing and maintain its fresh look.

The design possibilities with Nordik Moss are endless. You can frame it like a picture, transform a whole wall, or even incorporate it into furniture. We can create patterns, words, or logos, on flat, contoured or 3D surfaces, and you can choose from a spectrum of colours. Whatever your vision, our team can put it on the wall for all to see.

Eight great reasons to introduce moss into your office:

- 1. Beautiful to look at
- 2. Made from sustainable materials
- 3. Unlimited design possibilities
- 4. Maintenance free
- 5. Flame retardant
- 6. Improves acoustics
- Doesn't take up any extra office space
- 8. Helps to attract new clients, customers and staff

Furniture with built-in planting

Furniture such as desks, lamps, chairs and even sanitising stations can double as planters combining function with beauty.

Dressing shelves and tops of cabinets with plants can give corporate spaces a greener and more attractive effect without sacrificing any valuable floor space. They also discourage clutter and stop documents being left lying around an office. Cabinet top planting is ideal for high traffic areas within an office and the eye-level planting allows everyone to enjoy the benefits of biophilic design.

Screens and partitions

Plants are an ideal solution for segregating areas of an office, restaurant, or retail space, and give a sense of privacy in open plan spaces.

There are many mobile options of planted screens to accommodate layout changes or relocation making them a much more versatile option than permanent structures.

Plants for grid shelving

Grid shelving offers flexibility to workspaces providing the right mix of private and shared space. It allows for the simple and attractive division of space into zones for specific working purposes and social distancing without the cost of building walls.

Grid shelving can be customised to include gorgeous, draped greenery, plants, and moss panels. The lighting and storage options available with this type of shelving can create a highly attractive visual and acoustic barrier. Grid shelving also delivers levels of privacy between different working zones whilst maintaining a connection with the whole space.

Planter perfection

Our office planters come in a diverse array of styles, from sleek and modern designs to classic and timeless options, ensuring there's a perfect match for every office aesthetic.

Hassle-free Maintenance

Whether indoor or outdoor, real plants require the right care and attention, delivered at optimal intervals.

Plants which have been expertly maintained makes your space feel inviting and gives a great first impression to your visitors. When enhancing your business with plants, you also want to protect your investment and avoid the need for expensive replacements.

We offer a hassle-free maintenance service to keep your plants looking as healthy as the day they were installed so you can focus on what matters most to your business.

Rented plants:

Plants which have been rented from us include a maintenance contract which typically lasts a minimum of three years.

Purchased + existing plants:

Maintenance contracts are also available for plants you have purchased from us, or even your own existing plants, over a period of 1, 2 or 3 years.

Whether you have a maintenance contract for rented, purchased, or your own plants; we provide the same excellent service for all of our clients.
